

Letter from Alexander Graham Bell to Mabel Hubbard Bell, June 16, 1898, with transcript

ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL TO MABEL (Hubbard) BELL Beinn Bhreagh, C. B.
Thursday, June 16, 1898. At B. B. Hall. Journal

Yesterday, Wednesday, spent greater part of day on top of mountain flying kites of different kinds — as quite a gale was blowing. Mr. Ellis gave out at 6:45 P.M. — as he felt hungry and cold — so sent him down to dinner with Mr. McCurdy — and remained myself experimenting till about 8:15. Had some supper and then smoked cigar on verandah lounge — tired out. Fell asleep there and did not wake until 3 A.M. Read my mail — looked over newspapers and etc., and went to bed after good hot bath. Slept soundly till 11 A.M. Feel better than I have done for a long time. These kite experiments give as a great deal of moderate exercise indirectly — good thing.

No letter from you — but nice letter from Elsie.
